Ontario Works has been working with Axis Sorting over the last year and the employer has consistently given participants an opportunity to prove themselves. Through constant communication and advice from the employer, we have been able to coach and train individuals on the work ethic and environment that the local manufactures can provide.

Axis Sorting has employed 13 participants over the last year, which are now financially independent from Ontario Works. Many people are just looking for an opportunity to re-enter the workforce and to utilize the skills and attributes they have to offer. This employment exposure has allowed the candidates to experience a wide range of companies and processes, previously unknown to them. Axis Sorting has given many a chance to work and increase their skill set in a variety of manufacturing facilities. All while allowing them the opportunity to continue learning and developing the skills and experience that will open the doors to their careers of choice. This had led to some increased responsibilities and financial compensation as well.
